It has been done for me in a late speech by Judge Roberts of our Supreme Court: The great question before the American people is: shall the institution of slavery be put upon a sure basis of gradual extinction. The Northern controlling majorities say it shall. The South say it shall not. And that is the issue. The man who would dispute that statement of the question is so far behind the times that it would take all night to get back to him. I proceed: in the same speech it is shown that the measures adopted at the North for the extinction of slavery have now gained advantages which cannot be successfully opposed, or averted, except by prompt State action, and that we are justified in pursuing that remedy to any extent that may be necessary to secure our endangered rights. After showing that a State Convention may be called, with or without the sanction of the State authorities, Judge Roberts teaches that it may declare the people absolved from their fealty to the General Government. He further says: The remedy itself (that is, secession) may be adopted conditionally, for the purpose of placing the State on equal terms in treating for an adjustment of satisfactory guarantees against future violations of its rights, or absolutely for the purpose of final separation. This I regard as very important, because it affords a platform upon which all can unite. Those who think something should be done, can here find a decided position - leaving...
