Ill HUNGER FOR WOMAN By the term hunger for woman I mean those feelings which normally find their satisfactions in the nature of woman. This refers to mind, heart, and character, as well as to body. It includes all those incompletenesses that find their fulfilment in woman, for it is the man and woman together that form the social unit. A person in love may act almost as a hypnotized person does--acting, thinking, feeling nothing but the flood of love and desire that pours through him. Asleep or awake, working or playing, one feeling, one desire, is ever before the heart. Love may come with the suddenness of a summer storm. This means, I take it, that the body and heart are already set up for love--so that with exactly the right stimulus the whole being is in the fever of love. The state of being in love may last for years, or may be but a passing episode. Technical descriptions of sex-love and its phenomena are foreign to the purpose of this book. Let me turn, therefore, to sex hunger and indicate some classes of ways in which it may seek and find its more or less complete satisfactions. 1. A man may love and marry a woman and discover year after year that she is increasingly attractive, that she grows in tenderness and beauty of life, that comradeship with her becomes increasingly vital. He finds that the physical elements of sex,...
