We are met together to consider a subject in which we all are deeply interested, because the healthy the tranquillity, the morality, nay, the Christianity of the people of this country are nearly concerned in the sanitary condition of these towns; and yet one upon which persons of all classes, all parties, and all creeds may, both in consultation and action, harmoniously combine, and cordially cooperate, because it-affords no scope for political or theological differences. I only hope that, though I cannot treat it as it deserves (and I assure you I am painfully sensible of my insufficiency), yet that I may at any rate assist in attracting to it the attention of others better qualified by knowledge and eloquence to do it justice, but above all, of those whose position gives them the opportunity of improving the health of the towns with which they are connected. It seems to have been almost the universal impression of mankind, even in very early times, that a country life is more healthy, both in body and mind, than a town life. Classical writers are full of allusions to its superiority. A complete school of poetry, indeed, has formed the...
