Brand New Book  Print on Demand .An excerpt from the INTRODUCTION: As the following tales have all been translated from the Bhaktivijaya (Victory of devotion) of Mahipati, a sketch of that admirable poet s life will not he out of place, especially as it resembles in many particulars the life of one of his own saints. Mahipati was the son of Dadopant a Rigvedi Deshastha Brahman, who was the hereditary kulkarni of Tarabad in the Ahmadnagar district. Dadopant was an ardent worshipper of Vithoba of Pandharpur. Yet in spite of many pilgrimages to the shrine of Vithoba, Dadopant and his wife remained childless. It was not until Dadopant was nearly sixty years of age that he became a father. The story runs that once when Dadopant had gone to Pandharpur on one of his pilgrimages, the god Vithoba appeared to him in a dream. The god put into his worshipper s hands a ball of sweetmeats and bade him give it to his wife. When Dadopant awoke, he found the ball of sweetmeats still in his hand. Dadopant carried, the ball of sweetmeats home and gave it to his wife; in less than a year she gave birth to a son (A.D. 1715). The parents of the little boy called him Mahipati. From his earliest childhood Mahipati shewed signs of a religious temperament; and he was only five years old when he begged leave from his father to join a company of pilgrims and go with them to Pandharpur. From that time to his father s death, which occurred when he was only sixteen, Mahipati made a yearly pilgrimage to the great shrine. Upon his father s death he became in his place kulkarni...
